Call For Pay-As-Go Budget

Advisers Council Says Wider Price And Wage Control Is "Inevitable"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(P)—President Truman's council of Economic Advisers today called on the government to give the people some definite target for the build-up of military production.

The council called for higher taxes and a pay-as-you-go federal budget. It declared that wider, mandatory price and wage control is "inevitable," and did not omit the possibility of rationing. It foresaw many years of "very high defense spending."

But its annual report to Mr. Truman hammered on the theme that mobilization cannot be fully effective unless industry, government and public knows "what we as a nation are striving to do and why."

There was every sign that the council, headed by Leon Keyserling, was setting the stage for President Truman to hand Congress, early next month, specific goals in terms of thousands of planes, tanks and guns to deter Communist aggression.

Mr. Truman's annual economic message to Congress, which usually follows the budget and state of the union messages early in the session, is based on the economic findings of the advisory council.

Hitting World War II Peak
Meantime Secretary of Commerce Sawyer in a year-end economic review announced that total production in 1950 climbed to about $280,000,000,000. As the year ends, he said, business activity is hitting the World War II peak.

But higher prices accounted for part of the dollar rise in output, Sawyer said, and "it is clear that further measures are required to resist inflation and speed defense production."

The economic advisers told Mr. Truman that only 7 percent of today's national output is military, as against 40 percent in World War II. The three-man council declared:

"The concentration of our productive efforts upon defense objectives could raise far about this point, and we could still maintain a vigorous national economy capable of meeting additional demands upon it."

"It is essential to effective mobilization that the military program be defined as quickly and clearly as feasible."

The council said setting such goals would have a "galvanic and unifying effect" on the public. It recalled the effectiveness of Franklin D. Roosevelt's demand, at the start of the last war, for 50,000 planes.

Try To Stem Inflation

The council estimated the country has the plant, material and manpower resources to boost production 25 percent in the next five years but will need a big bit of controls to steer the effort and stem inflation.

Americans should stand ready to carry "as large a tax as the defense burden," the report went on. They should not abandon the pay-as-you-go principle "unless it should become absolutely hopeless to maintain it."

The council hinted at the kind of tax program it favors. The new taxes should restrain "general" consumption a suggestion that no earner should escape them. To be fair, the levies should include "the excess profits tax and the progressive income tax," and finally, "heavy excise taxes on scarce commodities" would repress demand for those items.

The council, which was sympathetic a year ago to "cost-of-living clauses" and "annual improvement clauses" in wage contracts, said such policies now need "reconsideration" because they tend to aggravate inflation.

The escalator clauses now are written into CIO contracts with several automobile companies and have been widely copied.

Alternative wage-control policies were suggested: first, to hold the general level of wages approximately motionless until consumer supplies can be increased; and second, to permit a peace-rate of increase but to offset it by higher taxes or by postponing the actual payment of wage increases.

Youths Fired At A Trooper

Captured After A Volley Of Shots At W. A. Crowder

PAOLA, Kas., Dec. 30.—(P)—Four Kansas City youths were captured here today a few hours after they disarmed and fired a volley of shots at a Missouri state highway patrol trooper.

Sheriff Kenneth Cook, who aided Kansas highway patrol officers in the capture said the youths admitted shooting at Trooper W. A. Crowder of the Missouri patrol when he sought to question them this morning about two miles south of Harrisville. Crowder was seeking men who had burglarized two stores at Garden City, Mo.

In possession of one of the youths was the service revolver which Crowder was forced to discard.

Sheriff Cook said the four youths gave their names as Albert W. McKinney, 20; John L. Blackmon, 18; Loren W. Young, 20, and Roy H. Nolen, 22, all of Kansas City.

They were returned to Harrisville late today by Sheriff Temple Forrest of Cass county and Capt. O. L. Veits of the Missouri state highway patrol.

Arrests At Paola
Kansas officers were alerted quickly after the incident near Harrisville. Troopers Fred Coon and Eric De Gaffenreid of the Kansas highway patrol and Sheriff Cook rounded up the four in short order after spotting their car near a hotel. They arrested Young and Nolen in a room at the hotel. A short time later they found McKinney and Blackmon on the street. McKinney, the sheriff said, sought to draw a pistol, but he was disarmed.

In their possession, officers found Trooper Crowder's revolver and three automatic pistols. Sheriff Cook said the youths admitted they had stolen two shotguns, two rifles and some ammunition at two Garden City stores and had hidden them near Louisburg, Kas. The weapons and the ammunition were recovered late today.

As Trooper Crowder reached the gunmen's car to question them, the occupants covered him with their pistols and ordered him to drop his revolver. Instead he threw it into a ditch. He then dove for the weapon, missed it, and started crawling away. The gunmen fired a fusillade of shots at him and then fired about 10 bullets into the patrol car.

Crowder was unharmed and the gunmen drove away when another car approached the scene.

Severely Injured In Fall From Horse
Bruce C. Claycomb, route 1, Hughesville was seriously injured Friday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock when he fell from a horse while chasing a steer on the A. B. Gilmore farm, which is located two miles west of the Claycomb residence at Hughesville.

Mr. Claycomb had gone to the Gilmore farm on horseback to bring a cow and young calf back to his farm when he saw that a steer had gotten into his land. It was while chasing the steer trying to load it in a truck that the accident happened.

Mr. Claycomb was taken to the Bothwell hospital in Mr. Gilmore's car by two hired hands, Henry Blaylock and William Mueller, who were helping Mr. Claycomb round up the steer.

At the hospital Dr. W. A. Beckmeyer listed Claycomb's injuries as a brain concussion and a badly fractured right shoulder and said that he had remained unconscious for over an hour.

His condition was reported much improved Saturday.

Ban Copper Use In Many Of Products

Use Restricted On Others In A Sweeping Order

By Norman Walker

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(P)—The government, in a sweeping order biting into the civilian economy, today banned or sharply restricted the use of copper in more than 300 products.

After March 1 the scarce metal cannot be used in new manufacture of items ranging from pots and pans, building hardware, furniture and electrical appliances to jewelry, toys and paper clips.

Brass, which is made in part of copper, also is restricted. The National Production Authority, which issued the order, said however that copper or brass may be used in making items on the banned list where the materials are used for a functional purpose, as in working parts.

This would allow continued use of small quantities of copper, or brass, as electrical conductors or in bearings, where no practical substitute is available.

The order is the first in the present mobilization spelling out essential and non-essential uses. Previously, percentage cuts had been ordered effective Jan. 1, in the amounts of certain metals, including aluminum, zinc, tin, lead and copper, which manufacturers may use. The previous copper-brass curtailment order-cutting usage by 15 per cent in January and February, and 20 per cent in March—still stands.

But these metal curtailments do not operate as does today's copper order to ban outright the use of available quantities on particular items. Such orders are reported under consideration for other metals, including aluminum and zinc.

Cut Steel Use
In addition, the amount of steel available for civilian production was cut by allocations and priorities for defense and defense-supporting manufacture. Also, the government has taken over control of cadmium and cobalt supplies.

But the copper order today actually lists the items from which copper is banned. The metal is prohibited for all ornamental and decorative use. This includes "bright work" and trim on automobiles, as well as in auto wheel disks, defrosters and heaters, as tank caps, mirrors and brackets.

William H. Harrison, the NPA administrator, said the order does not prohibit the manufacture of the banned items, only forbids the use of copper in them. He said in many cases manufacturers will be able to use substitute materials.

Provision was made to permit industry to adjust itself to use of substitute metals or plastic. Affected items in the process of manufacture on or before March 1 can be completed up to April 30.

The list of banned copper products includes copper pipe and tubing, door hinges, house numbers, door hangers, cabinet and furniture hardware, drains and downspouts, roofing, shower parts, towel bars, weather stripping, and windows.

In consumer goods items copper can be used only as an electrical conductor or in working parts in stove and ranges, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, refrigerators, floor polishers, toasters, food mixers, electric irons and electric razors.

Before the order was put out some smaller manufacturers of household items had complained they would be virtually put out of business because substitution is difficult. They also face the problem that EPCN substitute metals may be restricted later.

But Harrison stressed that the order allows appeals, adjustments and exceptions in cases of "undue hardship."

Today's order, like all NPA orders, are backed up by penalties of a $10,000 fine or a year in prison, or both, for violators as provided in the defense production act of 1950.

The forbidden list for copper includes virtually all dress and clothing accessories, even snaps and hooks and eyes. The metal's use is banned for costume jewelry, ash trays and humidors, fire place fixtures, trunk and luggage hardware, automatic pencils, umbrellas, and tableware.

Near to Record On Fire Calls

Total Of 391 Up To Mid-Afternoon Saturday For Year

The fire companies had another busy Saturday when they answered five alarms resulting in little damage in one fire. The runs up to 2:25 o'clock in the afternoon brought the year total to 391 answered, the second largest number of runs ever made by the Sedalia fire companies. In 1936 the all-time record was set when the fire companies answered 427 calls.

Since 1936 when the 427 alarms were answered the fifteen year period as to alarms answered each year is as follows: 1937 (301; 1938, 316; 1939, 359; 1940, 341; 1941, 293; 1942, 299; 1943, 390; 1944, 334; 1945, 307; 1946, 269; 1947, 321; 1948, 359; 1949, 310 and 1950, 391 up to Saturday afternoon.

Dent Deepened In The Allied East Front Line By Reds In Korea

Boys Charged With Murder Of Playmate

Are Bound Over To The Circuit Court For Drowning Boy

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., Dec. 30.—(P)—Three solemn-faced boys from nine to 11 years old, today were bound over to circuit court on charges of first degree murder by Magistrate Sam Corbett.

The boys are Harvey Neal Journey, 11; Walter Herrin, 11, and Walter's brother, Raymond, nine.

An Eight-Year-Old Companion
They are charged with tying the hands and feet of their eight-year-old companion, Paul Lee Nicholson, of St. Louis, and throwing him into the Mississippi river Dec. 18.

Magistrate Corbett tonight said that if the state "had merely proved that the boys were 11 and nine and had killed a boy by strangling and drowning, and that the body had been found and the act admitted, I would have had to turn them loose."

He explained that under the law boys seven years old or less are presumed to be incapable of committing a crime. Between the ages of seven and 14, the magistrate said, the presumption that they are incapable of committing a crime is rebuttable.

The magistrate said evidence today given by witnesses went further than showing the act was committed.

Are Extraordinarily Smart
"These boys are extraordinarily smart. They took care of themselves under repeated questioning as well as adults and for a long time denied even knowing the dead boy," Corbett said.

He said evidence today showed that one of the defendant boys was trying to sell a coat belonging to the dead boy and that it was noticed since the whole town was looking for the missing boy.

Young Nicholson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nicholson, of St. Louis, had been living here with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Huffman, since last March in the hope that he would gain weight.

"They never did tell why they did it," Corbett said.

No date has been set for the circuit court hearing, but it is not expected to be held before February.

The youths did not testify today. Magistrate Corbett said the circuit judge would appoint attorneys for them in the circuit court hearing.

Among the witnesses today was School Superintendent Roscoe Pierce, who testified that the accused boys showed the mentality of much older persons, especially in "ways of the world."

He said they played hooky a lot. The boys were playing hooky on the day they admitted to sheriff's deputies they threw young Nicholson into the river.

A first degree murder conviction could carry a penalty of death or life imprisonment. The circuit judge, who also is the juvenile court judge here, could still try the boys in juvenile court where conviction would carry less severe penalties.

MacArthur Informs Japanese Of Duty To Free Nations

TOKYO, Sunday, Dec. 31.—(P)—General MacArthur today told the Japanese people that if the danger of "international lawlessness" continues, it will become Japan's duty to join the free nations and "mount force to repel force."

In his fifth annual New Year's message to the people of this occupied country, the supreme commander, allied powers, praised Japan's renunciation of war as "one of the highest ideals the modern world has known."

However, he bluntly declared that "... this ideal must give way to the overwhelming law of self-preservation" if Communism continues to threaten world peace.

Veteran Goes Berserk Killing Four Persons

His Parents And His Sister's Two Small Children

AKRON, Dec. 30.—(P)—Fearing a return to a hospital, a World War II veteran went berserk and killed his parents and his sister's two tiny children today.

"I Did It To Save Them"

The 25-year-old veteran, Irvin Snodgrass, told Sheriff Robert L. Smith:

"I did it to save them."

The sheriff said that, except for an undershirt, Snodgrass was naked when he beat his parents, apparently with a hammer, and set a house fire which smothered the youngsters.

He was inducted into the army in 1944. After three months at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., he was taken to a psychopathic ward at Fort McClelland, Ala., and then released from service.

His father took him to Hawthornden state hospital in 1945 but later asked and obtained his release.

Today the Goodrich Tire & Rubber Co. employee was scheduled to go to Crile Veterans Administration hospital near Cleveland for another examination.

Dreaded Examination

He told the sheriff that, dreading the examination, he had bought a bus ticket to Denver, Colo., and had intended to sneak off early this morning.

"I guess I should have gone yesterday," the sheriff quoted him.

Firemen found his father, James Snodgrass, lying across the bed on the second floor of the house at Sawyerwood, just east of Akron.

The grandmother was on the floor downstairs, near the beds of Clyde Morrow, 2, and his sister, Georgianna, 1. The grandparents were both 49 years old.

The children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Morrow, were living at a rooming house at Lakewood, a Cleveland suburb.

A Sawyerwood neighbor telephoned them but did not tell them the children were dead, merely that there had been a fire and that they should return. After borrowing $10 from their landlady they started for Akron. The father had lost his wallet this morning.

Children Suffocated

Dr. C. I. Martin, Summit county coroner, declared, "it appears the man was slugged to death. We can't tell yet about the woman, but the children assuredly died in the fire of suffocation."

Asked if he had used a hammer on his father, the veteran said, "my own hand held the hammer."

The hammer was not found. "I guess maybe I did," he continued when asked if he hit his mother.

He declared his father "wouldn't let me do anything I wanted to," adding he was prevented from seeing his girl friend or driving a truck owned by the senior Snodgrass.

Artillery Being Dragged Up To Attack Position On West Sector

By ROBERT EUNSON

TOKYO, Sunday, Dec. 31.—(P)—Red forces deepened their dent in the allied line in eastern Korea Saturday and brought artillery and some armor into attack position on the western front for an expected all-out smash at Seoul in the first days of the new year.

Forty Russian-made jet planes of the growing Communist force clashed with 15 speedy U. S. Sabre jets over northwest Korea in the war's biggest air battle Saturday.

Two Red jets were damaged. All U. S. planes returned safely to base.

U. S. Fifth Air Force medium bombers spotted Chinese Communist tanks, half-tracks and artillery moving across the 38th parallel into attack position in the Kaesong area, northwest of Seoul.

The American airmen reported they disabled 20 large field guns, knocked out one half-track and damaged nine, and blew up one tank.

Kaesong, two miles south of parallel 38, the old arbitrary boundary of Red North and Republican South Korea, is ten miles behind the Reds' western front along the Imjin river. The front is only 27 miles north-west of the South Korean capital of Seoul.

Prepare for Seoul Smash
Other Red artillery was reported near Yonchon, six miles north of parallel 38 and 36 miles due north of Seoul.

Appearance of Red armor in the areas emphasized imminence of the long-awaited assault on Seoul. General MacArthur said last week that only Red infantry were massed along the western front.

Ceaseless daylight air watch on the roads in Red territory apparently delayed until now the movement of Communist armor to the front.

The U. S. Eighth Army and other United Nations forces held strong in the center of their 150-mile line across Korea's mid-section Saturday night, but in both the east and west the Reds had reached positions from ten to 13 miles south of the 38th parallel.

The allies held some points north of the parallel at last reports, however. An Eighth Army spokesman named one of these as Inje, four miles above the line and 25 miles inland from the east coast. Another was Taegok in central Korea, one mile north of the parallel and 42 miles north-east of Seoul.

In a Saturday action separate from the big jet clash in the northwest, U. S. Sabres shot down one Russian-built Mig-15 jet and probably destroyed another in the same general area.

The Air Force reported no U. S. planes were damaged.

The action raised to 17 the number of Mig-15 definitely or probably destroyed.

Meet the American Girl of 1951

Here's How She'll Look...

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

All rumors to the contrary, the 1951 woman will be sleek and slender—although she'll have a "full-blown bust" according to beauty specialists.

The panel of experts including beautician Elizabeth Arden, model agent John Robert Powers, glamor or success school head mistress Ann Delafield, calendar artist Gil Elvgren, veteran brasserie manufacturer Ida Rosenthal, and George Hurrell, a photographer whose specialty is beautiful women, were queried to determine just what tomorrow's American beauty will look like. They were all in agreement on one thing—their crystal balls do not show curved hips in the near future, although the bust will be bigger.

Elizabeth Arden sees in the longer hair trend a return to femininity. She has clamored for this since short hair made its debut. Says she:

"Everyone is sick of women looking like men with short and shingled hair. Sometimes it is difficult to tell the sexes apart, unless you look head-on. Most women will wear chignons until their short hair grows back to the length they admire. Tiny waists, large busts, less tummy and less weight will be the 1951 silhouette."

John Powers thinks the "new look" will be the "you look." Says he:

"Tomorrow's girl will get away from being a rubber stamp. She'll make the most of what nature bestowed on her. She'll wear her hair to frame her face, be neither plump nor slender, but will emphasize the weight and proportion which is most becoming to her."

Ann Delafield foresees the shingle hairdo gone forever, although she predicts that the bun "which makes women look older will not replace it." She adds:

"We'll see tiny waists and kitten hips in 1951. I predict a 38 bustline for girls more than 5 feet 6 inches tall and a 36 inch bustline for their shorter sisters. The tip of the bust must measure half way between shoulders and waist for a well-rounded line."

Calendar artist Gillette Elvgren, whose girls combine the features best liked by home owners, businesses, organizations and others who hang approximately 100,000,000 calendars on walls across the United States says:

"My 1951 calendar girls are small of hands, feet and waist, but they are good and chesty. Specific measurements do not mean a thing to me but a top calendar girl must give an overall effect of trimness and refinement."

Here's What She'll Wear...

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

The shadow of war already has had its effect on mid-century fashions.

The trend, as always in wartime, is toward simplification of dress by day, elaboration by night.

Women of 1951 will choose the slim, simply tailored suit or dress-and-jacket costume as a daytime uniform, blossom out in diaphanous, low-cut gowns after dark.

Skirts will be slightly shorter and even narrower than last season's, if that is possible. Hats will take a trim forward slant.

Here are the predictions of top designers: who expect government restrictions and further fabric shortages within the year:

Nettie Rosenstein: "The silhouette will get simpler, straighter. Prices will become higher as hard goods get scarcer."

Pauline Trigere: "Designers instinctively streamline daytime clothes and elaborate on evening clothes in the atmosphere of war. That has been happening since last July and will continue to happen until times are more tranquil."

Hattie Carnegie: "The tension and troubles of the day will automatically mean clothes that deliberately try to brighten the atmosphere. Women will forget the word 'chic' and seek prettiness first. That, at least, will be a blessing."

Sally Victor: "The simple daytime silhouette always gives milliners a field day. So as clothes grow more restrained, hats will be more feminine and appealing. The forward slant is here for a while, but in a gay and flattering guise. We can't just wear nuns' caps. We have to do something to bolster our spirits."

Esther Dorothy: "Furs will follow the general trend of the times. The short overcoat in

AP Newsfeatures
Gen. Douglas MacArthur was the man of the year for 1950. The commander of United Nations forces in Korea, chief of the allied occupation of Japan and leader of all American troops in the Western Pacific, was chosen by the editors of Associated Press newspapers in a poll for the outstanding newsmaker.
As one of the greatest military leaders of modern times, MacArthur won his designation after his "win-the-war" offensive in Korea had been reversed.
The men close to the news gave the general his rating over the following leaders in their specific fields:
Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio in politics.
Secretary of State Dean Acheson in foreign affairs.
Walter Reuther head of the CIO United Auto Workers, in labor.
Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, in industry.
Drs. Edward C. Kendall and Philip S. Hench of the Mayo Clinic, in science.
William Faulkner, Noble prize winning novelist, in literature.
The late Al Jolson in entertainment.
Mrs. Perle Mesta, minister to Luxembourg, as woman of the year.
The editors' nomination of MacArthur as top news personality of the year coincided with their vote on the Korean war as the biggest news event of 1950. From his command post in Tokyo and his spectacular background in leading the liberation of Far East lands in World War II, MacArthur had been a logical choice for the direction of the Korean campaign.
The assignment was admittedly tough from the time the North Korean Reds invaded the republic south of the 38th parallel. MacArthur's leadership bolstered the morale of the defenders as they were driven back to a precarious beachhead. His genius turned the tide with the landing at Inchon. And his assurance inspired the United Nations forces in their drive toward the Manchurian border to rid the peninsula of communistic imperialism.
When the herds of Chinese communists invaded Korea to upset the balance, MacArthur called the turn by notifying the United Nations of an entirely "new war." Overwhelmingly outnumbered — and not authorized to use atomic weapons, the general was obliged to direct a retreat.

Taft's victory over organized labor opposition was one of the year's surprises in the news. It underwrote his national standing as "Mr. Republican."

Secretary of State Acheson won his news laurels despite the controversy that has smoldered under foreign affairs throughout the year. Acheson was subjected to political fire in January because of his hands-off Formosa policy — later was reversed. He was attacked by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy on grounds that communists had been harbored in the state department. His character references in favor of Alger Hiss, later convicted of perjury, aroused more criticism. And his name became a shibboleth in the November elections.

The five-year General Motors contract based on the gearing of wage-rises to the cost of living in an effort to insure peace between labor and management in the automobile industry won the editors' votes for Reuther in labor and Wilson in industry.

Medical miracles wrought by Cortisone and ACTH, new wonder drugs, brought recognition to the Rochester, Minn. doctors — Kendall and Hench. The Nobel prize in medicine and physiology was awarded to them, while the Nobel prize in literature went to "Sanctuary's" author, Mississippi-born Faulkner and won him his place in the news many years after his heyday in literature.

Al Jolson's recognition was belated. His sudden death after a strenuous tour of the Korean war zone shocked the nation that loved his songs and comedies.

And crowning the achievements of women, Mrs. Perle Mesta's success as U. S. minister to Luxembourg, revealed the quality that had been hidden under the tinsel

U. S. to Tighten Belt in 1951

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

If you've been grumbling about food prices the past year, you'd better take a deep breath—they're going to be even higher in 1951. You may not feel the rise immediately but by mid-year it's a sure thing you'll need to put more money in your food budget.

One hopeful note, even in the face of possible rationing, is that we've been producing plenty of food and we have large stocks of staple foods—so that counting in army allocations, Mrs. America and her family will have plenty of good things to eat.

If you're one of the millions of people who feel dinner isn't dinner without meat you'll be glad to know that livestock numbers are above normal and that feed grain stocks are at near record levels. You'll probably be eating more pork than any other kind of meat in 1951, because we're marketing the third largest pork crop in our entire food production history. The pork is good quality, too, and there should be enough variety in pork cuts to keep your family satisfied.

There will be more beef around. But don't count on veal, lamb, or mutton to any great extent for dinner menus; supplies will continue to be as slim as they've been in the past year.

Fish is likely to be in about the same supply as last year. But here is an optimistic note: the pack of America's favorite canned fish, tuna, for 1951 is a record one. Maine sardines have also been running ahead of usual production. If you've been fretting about the price of canned salmon prepare to see it even less plentifully on tables—the pack is the lowest we've had since 1921.

Our poultry products have been reaching record proportions, and with meat continuing at high prices, chicken every Sunday will be in even greater demand. If your family likes turkey, better have those turkey dinners early in the year, when there's plenty of it around. Carry-over stocks of our favorite big bird are expected to be smaller than last year and birds hatched in 1951 won't move to market until late in the year.

The 1951 increase in price in dairy products is not expected to be as much as for some of the other foods that Americans like. The rise in price won't be felt as soon as that of other foods; that's because when Mr. and Mrs.

America's income goes up, as it will in 1951, they're not likely to splurge on butter and milk and cream and cheese the way they are on steak and roasts.
If you use in cooking in 1951 your best buy will probably be lard.

It's Almost Time for That Battle With Taxes; New Income Tax Primer Helps Homework

By RICHARD A. MULLENS
NEA Special Correspondent

It's almost time, taxpayers, to start getting out pencils and scratch pads and start figuring up how much you owe Uncle Sam on the money you earned in 1950.

But while taxes continue to go up, there's still help on the way for you. It's NEA's annual Income Tax Primer, soon to appear in this paper.

In 15 easy-to-read articles, it will tell you how to file your return so you pay the minimum tax or get a refund on what you've already paid through withholding.

The articles will follow the same basic outline which in previous years has made the Primer so helpful to the average taxpayer. Several features, however, have been added this year to explain several new and troublesome tax problems.

You will find in the articles:

- Simple step-by-step directions for filling out the return.
- Questions and Answers for each article on problems which bother most taxpayers.
- An article explaining how to report income from a small business or profession.
- Samples of the new forms which will be filled out to show just how tax problems are reported.
- Instructions on what to do if you feel the Bureau of Internal Revenue has made an error in any bill, statement or refund in connection with your tax.

NEA's Income Tax Primer has been designed to take you painlessly through the maze of the income tax return—to tell you one thing at a time; what to do and how to do it. Even if you don't understand just why you do something your return still will be correct—if you follow directions.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue provides with the tax forms a 16-page booklet on how to prepare your return. You can also obtain a more detailed booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax," for 25 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Both of these booklets are well prepared, authoritative and worth having.

The difference between them and NEA's Tax Primer is that the Bureau must add to its general statements the thousands of exceptions, of interest-only to a few, in order to protect itself against all possible problems. The Bureau also must confine itself to the exact letter of the law.

But NEA's Primer can and does give answers for 999 out of a thousand taxpayers, without confusing this vast majority by exceptions that concern only a few. And the Primer can and does tell about short cuts that are acceptable to the Bureau in a vast majority of cases.

The Primer is prepared in consultation with Bureau of Internal Revenue experts, but the Bureau cannot approve the Primer's shortcuts officially because it must reserve the right to insist on complete evidence when Bureau auditors are suspicious of a taxpayer's accuracy or honesty.

Letter To Prisoner Is Returned

VIENNA, Dec. 30 — (AP) — Mrs. Robert Vogeler said today she tried to send, through the Hungarian legation here, a Christmas letter to her husband in a Budapest prison, but it was returned opened, mishandled and soiled.

Vogeler, an American businessman, was sentenced early this year by a Hungarian court to 15 years, on a charge of spying against the Communist government.

Mrs. Vogeler said that along with the letter she sent a note to Hungarian Communist boss Matyas Rakosi. She asked the legation to do the forwarding. The letter and the note to Rakosi came back, along with a note saying the legation was "not in the position to forward your letters to Budapest."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Since 1940, NEA's Income Tax Primer, an annual feature in the Sedalia Democrat-Capital has been like a personal tax consultant in the living rooms of millions of newspaper readers struggling with their yearly returns. The 10th annual Primer is ready to help you again. Completely revised to make it even easier to understand than ever, this year's Primer has many new features added by Washington tax expert Richard A. Mullens on the basis of suggestions from followers of last year's Primer. Mullens, a lawyer, tax consultant, and creator of an income tax average plan supported by veterans' groups and other influential organizations, is a graduate of the same training course for the Federal agents who scan your own income tax return. As in other years, NEA's Primer has been prepared in consultation with Internal Revenue Bureau experts. It will soon appear in the Sedalia Democrat-Capital to help you with your 1950 tax.

Richard A. Mullens, NEA's Income Tax Primer expert, will soon appear in the Sedalia Democrat-Capital to help you with your 1950 tax.

Red Cross Corner

Happy New Year! The Red Cross office will be closed all day, January 1, 1951. And then, full steam ahead!

There will be no transition period between the old year and the new year for ARC. With the appointment of Major H. O. Berry as director of civil defense in Pettis county, plans are going forward to mobilize for defense. And though it seems rather fantastic that here in the very heart of the country such plans are deemed necessary, nevertheless, we are going to do just that—mobilize for defense. We do not want a little Pearl Harbor here at home. Our chapter will co-operate in every way with Major Berry and his methods of action.

Safety and protection are the two things we are concentrating on, and to insure safety and protection, we have qualified First Aid, Water Safety, and Home Care of the Sick instructors, who are immediately available to conduct classes anywhere in the county. At this point, we feel that we must emphasize the great importance of these Home Care of the Sick courses. The next few months on anybody's calendar have to be marked with a large question mark.

A few things are certain; there will be fewer doctors and fewer nurses. The only possible alternative is to instruct as many of the civilian population as possible in care of the sick and injured. So far women have taken the course. But why not men? Why not the male civic organizations as well as female church organizations. Several years ago a drastic accident proved beyond all doubt that it is generally the wife and mother who is injured. Then why can't the husbands and fathers be equally prepared. To all the presidents of all the local organizations, the Red Cross poses this question: Why not plan a course on Home Care of the Sick for your membership? Why not see to it that, in any emergency, the men of this community will be thoroughly

Casting For Play Start This Week

Casting will begin Wednesday night for "Dirty Work at the Crossroads," the three-act melodrama which will be the next presentation of the Sedalia Community Playhouse. The club will meet on Wednesday night at 7:30, at the V.F.W. Hall on East Third street.

Scripts for the play have been received, according to Lawrence M. Riley, who will direct. "This play looks like fun, both for us and the audience," said Mr. Riley. "It has a strong flavor of 'Hearts and Flowers' and a plot typical of the old fashioned melodrama which has been so popular in revival. The fact that some of the leading characters are called upon to sing old songs such as 'She's Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage,' etc., will give some of our musical members, and new members, a chance to use their talents."

A short business meeting will precede play readings, during which time members will be asked to fill in a new form of "preference" card, for the guidance of the board of directors in selecting an assistant director and technical personnel for "Dirty Work at the Crossroads." The board will hold a meeting also. Scott Webber, president, asks that all members attend and bring with them persons interested in becoming active in the club. "The Community Playhouse," said Mr. Webber, "is just that—a community group, and any member of the community interested in any form of stage work is welcome to become a member."

Two Judge Blairs At Capital City

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 30 — (AP) — The Cole County courthouse here will bulge after January 1 with two Judge Blairs.

Gov. Forrest Smith appointed William C. Blair Friday to be Cole County probate judge. He will replace the late Judge Thomas Parrish.

In the month since Judge Parrish died, however, Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair, Bill's older brother, has handled the business of the probate judge's office.

And down the street in this capital city is still another Blair, Lt. Gov. James T. Blair, Jr. William, who has been secretary to Congressman Morgan Moulder (D) of Camdenton, is the youngest of the three lawyer Blair brothers.

The terms of all three will end in 1952—creating the possibility of having a trio of Blairs on the general election ballot then.

Church Court Meets Jan. 2

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 30 — (AP) — The Supreme Court of the Methodist Church will meet in Columbus January 2.

The nine members of the Methodist judicial council—supreme authority on church law within the denomination—expect to consider about a half dozen cases that may turn out to be controversial.

Supreme court—five laymen and four lawyers—automatically reviews all decisions by Methodist bishops, but only a few become controversial. In these few cases, the council sits like the Supreme Court, allocating time for arguments on both sides, then taking the case under advisement.

Members of the judicial council are elected for eight-year terms. Present members include: Judge Martin E. Lawson of Liberty, Mo.

Girl Shot As Crime Tour End

YELLVILLE, Ark., Dec. 30.—(P)—A Colorado girl remained near death today from a wound received in a gunfight that ended the cross-country crime tour of three teen-agers near here last night.

Wanda Bowen, 15, Adams City, Colo., is in the nearby Gassville, Ark., hospital with a bullet wound in her abdomen. The hospital, which listed her condition as critical, said doctors had not decided whether she would undergo surgery.

Meanwhile, her two companions waited in a Harrison, Ark., jail for a new prosecutor to take office Monday to learn what charges they will face in Arkansas.

The two, Charles Beagle, 16, and David Coffman, 18, both of Denver, Colo., received minor flesh wounds in the running gun fight with Arkansas state policemen.

Prosecutor Eugene Moore, Harrison, who goes out of office tomorrow night, said he will turn the case over to Alton Bittle, Herber Springs, who takes office Monday. Bittle is to be in Harrison tomorrow to discuss the case with Moore and state policemen.

Search for the three started when Missouri officers reported the robbery of a store at Mammoth. A few minutes later a store at Three Brothers, Ark., just across the Missouri line in this rugged Ozark Mountain country, was reported.

About 10 minutes later, Arkansas State Trooper Clarence Montgomery sighted the three and gave chase. A headlight on a car was shot out and one bullet went through the windshield just over the steering wheel in a running exchange of gunfire.

Early Reports Indicate Less Traffic Death

(By The Associated Press)

Reports of a light accidental death toll sounded a note of comparative cheer Saturday at the start of the New Year's holiday season.

Even so, the National Safety Council predicted that by the end of 1950 traffic deaths will reach 35,000.

In the 27 hours up to 9 p. m. Saturday, the nation counted 79 violent deaths. Traffic accidents accounted for 61, and 18 were from miscellaneous causes.

This total contrasted with the terrible toll on the Christmas week-end when 724 persons died violent deaths—an average of 167 a day. Traffic accidents killed 545 then.

The Safety Council estimated motor accidents will claim 330 lives by midnight Monday, the end of the New Year's holiday.

If its estimate of 35,000 traffic deaths for the year is reached, 1950 will rank as the sixth worst year in the history of motor vehicle travel.

Only five times has the traffic toll exceeded 35,000 in a single year—1934, 1935, 1936, 1937 and the record year of 1941, when 39,969 died.

In Missouri traffic deaths were 2 and miscellaneous 1.

Death Decreed For Slayer

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 30.—(P)—Death in Oklahoma's electric chair Thursday became imminent today for Max Eugene Kletke, 24-year old Lansing, Mich., man.

He is scheduled to die at the McAlester penitentiary for the slaying of Carl Beach, Corfu, N. Y. railroad man, in Oklahoma county two years ago.

Kletke's fate was sealed by rapid official developments. The state pardon and parole board said it will take no further action on Kletke's clemency appeal.

The board's ruling came after receipt of a report from three psychiatrists who examined the condemned man at the prison yesterday. Attorneys arranged the examination hoping for a 60-day reprieve and another hearing by the parole board.

Doctors Charles E. Leonard, Mooman P. Prosser and Charles A. Smith said they found Kletke sane and responsible.

"We found no evidence of insanity or mental disease either in the present or the past," they reported. "We believe this man to be competent and able to distinguish between right and wrong; he displays only a distortion in personality seen in criminals."

Identify Body Of Slain Woman

DENVER, Dec. 30.—(P)—The body of a woman found shot to death two months ago near Arriba, Colo., was identified as that of Mrs. Esther Kopp, 58, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mrs. Ed. Moran of Idaho Falls, Idaho, viewed the body at Colorado General hospital and told officers she is certain it is that of her missing sister from Florida.

If the identification is confirmed it will partially clear up one of the most puzzling of Colorado homicide cases. Since the body was found October 24 in a ditch 20 miles east of Limon, more than 1,000 persons have looked at it in vain efforts to establish identity.

Her false teeth were examined by more than 150 dentists and 40 dental laboratories without result.

Mrs. Moran said she had not heard from her sister since mid-October when Mrs. Kopp left St. Petersburg for Kansas City, Mo. After seeing a picture of the slain woman in the sheriff's office at Idaho Falls, she was partially convinced it was her sister and came to Denver to confirm it.

The unclaimed body has been sent to the hospital for medical research use but it was preserved in the hope that identification could be made.

Mrs. Moran and her husband drove to Hugo after seeing the body and will confer there with Sheriff Merlin Koerner. Koerner found the woman, slain by three pistol bullets, after he had been called to the scene by a farmer who reported hearing shots at night. No trace has been found of the slayer.

THE A B C's OF DRY CLEANING

By Doc Bob, Your Dry Cleaner

Dressings and Finishes are another point on which to be on guard. Many of them disappear after one cleaning. Doc Bob "Crease-proof" and "crease-resistant" dressings may not endure beyond five or six cleanings. Some of them react peculiarly with stains and make removal difficult. It is also a fact that the cleaner can replace some types of dressings. The whole point at the present stage is...don't be too disappointed when the "crease-proof" or "crease-resistant" fabric starts to wrinkle like an ordinary fabric.

South Mauls North, 31-6

MU's Glorious Stars In Defeat; Rebels Lead Throughout

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A vastly superior southern all-star team with an irresistible passing combination and a bulldozer running attack smothered their northern rivals 31-6 in the Blue-Gray game here today.

A partisan crowd of 21,000, shivering in cloudy, near-freezing weather watched the power-laden Rebels win their eighth inter-sectional contest in 12 tries.

The Yankees had a jet-powered star in Missouri's fast stepping back John Glorioso, but not enough else to stop the southern-ers' charges.

Grays Have Many Stars

Outstanding for the Grays were Louisiana State's halfback Ken Konz, Duke's passing wizard Billy Cox, Georgia's hard-running Billy Nixon, and pass-snagging end Gene Schroeder from Virginia.

On defense, Army's All-America end Dan Foldsberg shared honors with end Arthur Tait of Mississippi State, who broke up one Blue play after another.

Only in the second period was the Yankee attack able to break through to put the ball across the goal. Glorioso grabbed a three-yard pass in the end zone to climax a 35-yard drive. He couldn't make the extra point, however.

Rebels Score Early

The southerners scored the first time they got the ball in the opening quarter, going 77 yards. Quarterback Butch Avinger of Alabama sneaked across from the one after Konz got loose for a 25-yard run and Cox connected with end Gene Schroeder of Virginia for 28 yards. Konz missed his kick.

A 62-yard push set up the first of three scores in the second period. Mixon dashed into the end zone from the 11-yard stripe, and Arkansas' Louie Schaufele converted for the only extra point of the game.

Later in the quarter, Schroeder crossed the goal after taking a pass from Avinger good for 42 yards. Schaufele missed his kick this time. Then, with time running out, Konz intercepted a pass thrown by Northwestern's Dick Flowers and ran 29 yards to score. Schaufele's boot was faulty again.

Mixon Scores Final TD

Neither team scored in the third period, but Mixon found the end zone again in the final quarter, driving across from the one. Alabama's end Al Lary missed his conversion attempt.

The statistics pretty much tell the story. Rebel ball carriers turned in 16 first downs to eight for their opponents. Made 259 yards rushing to 30, and picked up an additional 171 yards through the air compared to 95 for the Blues.

Mixon with 99 yards on the ground and Cox with 106 yards passing led the South's ground gainers. Glorioso paced the Yankees in rushing with a net 21 yards and flowers led in the air with 49.

The score by periods:
Blue..... 0 6 0 0—6
Gray..... 6 19 0 0—31

Blue scoring: Touchdown: Glorioso.

Gray scoring: Touchdowns: Avinger, Mixon (2), Schroeder, Konz; conversion: Schaufele.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Some 450,000 football fans will pay approximately $2,000,000 Monday for the twin privileges of taking their headachos out in the fresh air and watching the 11 college bowl games.

The day's largest crowd, an expected throng of 100,000, will gather at Pasadena, Calif., for the annual Rose Bowl contest which this time pits California, champion of the coast circuit, against Michigan, kingpin of the Big Ten.

Third Straight For Calif.

It will be the third straight time for the Californians, who haven't won since the Big Ten-Pacific Coast conference agreement went into effect. And over the years, it also will be the third appearance for Michigan. The Wolverines triumphed by identical 49 to 0 scores in previous western visits.

This time the midwest club is only a slight favorite although coach E. E. A. Osterbaan reports that both Chuck Ortmann and Leo Koceski, a pair of topflight backs, are in good condition for the first time since November.

82,000 To Sugar Bowl

Oklahoma, also making a third straight appearance, and Kentucky tangle in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans before the day's second largest crowd, 82,500. Because of a difference in ticket prices, however, gate receipts at both the Rose and Sugar bowl games will approximate $450,000.

The Cotton Bowl at Dallas, where Tennessee and Texas are the foes, expects 75,349 visitors while the Orange Bowl, with Miami and Clemson the attraction, hopes to draw 66,000.

The Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, growing steadily and threatening soon to make the Big Four the Big Five in the bowl industry, will lure 30,000 fans through the turnstiles with unbeaten Wyoming mixing it with Washington and Lee.

The six smaller bowls hope to attract 38,000 for a day's turnout that may equal the 459,000 who witnessed the 13 games on the Jan. 1 program a year ago.

Sooners Slight Favorites

Although five Oklahomans have dotted the hospital list during the final week of workouts, the Big Seven champions are slight favorites to defeat Kentucky, Southeast conference champs, and extend modern football's greatest winning streak to 32 games.

The lone Kentucky loss was suffered in the closing game of the season when Bill Leskovar, fullback, was injured on the opening play and did not return to the field.

Leskovar now is in shape again as is Leon Heath, fierce fullback of the Oklahomans.

Lines Battle at Dallas

Probably the most rugged line play of the day will be unfurled at Dallas where Tennessee and Texas are the opponents. Each team boasts an All-America guard.

Texas supporters will cheer Bud McFadin while the Volunteer cohorts will follow the efforts of Ted Daffar.

Miami's own university, unbeaten but tied once in an unbeaten 10 game schedule, is the slight favorite over Clemson although coach Andy Gustafson has had to find a new quarterback because of injuries to Jack Hackett.

Coach Frank Howard of Clemson, has complained that his players have lacked zest during their workouts in the orange capital since Christmas.

Tailboom Paces Wyoming

Eddie Tailboom, one of the nation's leading scorers, is the lure in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville. Tailboom and his cowboy mates are favorites over the crippled Washington & Lee team, which piled up eight victories in 10 games during the season to annex the Southern conference laurels.

Of the six lesser bowls only the Cigar contest at Tampa can boast an undefeated cast. The 15,000 spectators there will see the La-crosse Teachers from Wisconsin, share blocks and tackles with Valparaiso university of Indiana.

Both clubs marched unscathed through nine-game schedules.

Other games listed on the New Year's day program are:

Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.: Emory & Henry (9-1-0) vs. Morris Harvey (9-0-0) with 10 fans expected.

Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.: Cincinnati (8-3-0) vs. West Texas State (9-1-0), 18,000.

Salad Bowl at Phoenix, Ariz.: Miami of Ohio (8-1-0) vs. Arizona State of Tempe (9-1-0), 20,000.

Pineapple Bowl at Honolulu: Denver (3-7-1) vs. Hawaii (4-2-2), 16,000.

Oleander Bowl at Galveston, Tex.: Wharton (Tex.) Junior college (10-1-0) vs. San Angelo (Tex.) Junior college (7-2-0), 9,000.

STARTING of the Robert "Bob" Tipton Memorial Fund is to be Sunday afternoon January 7 when local teams will play basketball and all monies taken in will be deposited in the Third National Bank as the starter of the fund. Money which is placed into the fund will be used to help boys or girls deserving and desiring to further their education.

It is to be a Living Memorial to Tipton who was one of Sedalia's outstanding basketball and football players in Smith-Cotton high school, and who has been playing independent basketball since graduating from high school. Tipton was killed last December 6 while rabbit hunting.

The principal of the fund is to be used to help any worthy student with a loan to help him or her continue with his or her education. A committee is to be named who will make the decision as to whether or not the loan should be granted.

So on Sunday afternoon, a week from today, the Moose Club, with which Tipton was playing at the time of his death, is playing the General Business College in the feature game at 3:00 o'clock. In the first game starting about 1:30 o'clock the Missouri Pacific Dynamos will meet the Green Ridge independent basketball team.

It is suggested if you can possibly make it, attend this game and help to start a swelling fund well worthy of your contributions.

Magnates vs. Chandler Tops Turbulent Maneuvering

By Frank Eck
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Baseball's hirings and firings made headlines but the stunner to end all 1950 surprises was the major league vote leaving the sport with a commissioner it did not want.

While Commissioner A.B. (Happy) Chandler strives to hold baseball to the letter of his $65,000 a year contract, which expires on April 30, 1952, the majors are intent on selecting a new man "as soon as practicable."

Chandler, as a 46-year-old junior senator from Kentucky, was named commissioner for a seven-year term on April 24, 1945.

At the recent St. Petersburg, Fla., winter meetings it looked like Chandler would be voted a new seven-year contract. That is, it looked that way to all but Fred M. Saigh, energetic president of the St. Louis Cardinals. They have been bitter enemies. Saigh gathered enough executives on his side to bring about Chandler's defeat.

A third and final vote on a new Chandler contract was defeated by three votes. He needed 12 of the 16 clubs behind him but only nine executives favored retaining him.

"You haven't enough money to buy me out," was Chandler's stand.

What with the Korean war already having brought about the drafting of some big league pitching stars the end of the year found baseball standing on unsteady legs.

Four Pilots Ousted
Chandler was not alone in his plight. Four major league managers (two by one club) were fired during the year and three others quit.

Eighty-eight year old Connie Mack, baseball's grand old man, resigned as manager after piloting the Philadelphia Athletics for 50 years. He remained as club president although two of his sons and Earl Mack, gained control of the club.

Joe McCarthy resigned as the Boston Red Sox manager and popular Eddie Dyer stepped down as leader of the Cardinals. Those fired were Brooklyn's Burt Shotton, Cleveland's Lou Boudreau and Jack Onslow and John Corriden of the White Sox. Popular Steve O'Neill replaced McCarthy and almost won the pennant, his Sox finishing a close third.

Replacements for 1951 are Marty Marion, Cardinals; Charley (Chuck) Dressen, Dodgers; Jimmy Dykes, Athletics; Paul Richards, White Sox and Al Lopez, Indians.

Rickey Quits Brooklyn
Two club presidents stepped down. Branch Rickey lost his title as the Mahatma of Montague Street. The most brilliant trader in baseball history sold his 25 per cent interest in the Dodgers to his partners, Walter F. O'Malley and Mrs. John L. Smith for $1,002,500. O'Malley replaced Branch as Dodger president and now shares with Mrs. Smith 75 per cent of the Brooklyn stock.

Frank E. McKinney of Indianapolis resigned as president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, selling his stock to John W. Galbreath of Columbus, O., and Thomas P. Johnson. Galbreath later made Rickey general manager and vice president of his Pirates. It was Galbreath who paved the way for Rickey to sell his Brooklyn stock by introducing him to William Zeckendorf, a New York realtor.

However, O'Malley and Mrs. Smith held prior rights to the stock. Zeckendorf received $50,000 from Rickey for acting as middle man in the surprise deal. The Brooklyn stock sale involved a 12½-year contract and an estimated $600,000 profit to Rickey.

The New York Yankees won their 17th American league pennant and 13th World Series by downing the young Philadelphia Phillies in four straight. The scores were 1-0, 2-1, 3-2 and 5-2 making the series the most runless on record. The victory made it two for two for Casey Stengel. The majors drew 17,462,977, a 14 per cent drop over 1949. Bad spring weather and television got the blame.

Both teams came down the wire after blistering pennant races. The Yankees nosed out the Tigers and Red Sox with two days to go while the Phillies clinched their first flag in 35 years when Dick Sisler's three-run 10th inning homer beat the Dodgers. The Phillies at one time had an eight-game lead. Injuries and the loss of their ace southpaw, Curt Simmons, to the army almost cost Eddie Sawyer's team the pennant. Two other young pitching stars, Ed Ford of the Yankees and Art Houtteman of the Tigers, were drafted after the season.

Voted as the most valuable players were Jim Konstanty, 33-year-old bespectacled relief pitcher of the Phillies and Phil Rizzuto, brilliant Yankee shortstop. Both had their best years in the majors. Konstanty appeared in 74 games, all in relief, won 16 and lost 7. He set several records along the way and made his first big league start in four years when he opened the World Series. He lost 1-0. Vic Raschi's two-hitter was too much for the Phillies. Rizzuto, playing in every Yankee game, hit .324 and set two fielding marks by handling 288 straight chances in 58 games before committing an error.

Phillies Just Made It

Sawyer, serving his second full year in the majors, was named manager of the year. In the spring he picked the Phillies to win by 10 games, he said later, but didn't tell a soul about it. It's a good thing he didn't. His Whiz Kids just tottered home.

Best pitching effort was the first no-hitter in two seasons. It was turned in by Vernon Bickford of the Boston Braves against Brooklyn. The leading National league pitchers were Sal Maglie of the Giants with an 18-4 record (.818) and Warren Spahn of the Braves who turned in 21 wins against 17 losses. It was his third 21-game year in four seasons. American league hurling aces were Vic Raschi of the Yankees with 21-8 (.724) and Bob Lemon, 23-11 for Cleveland for his third straight 20-game campaign.

Kiner again topped the National league in homers with 47 while Al Rosen, Indian third sacker, surprised by hitting 37 in the American. Stan Musial of the Cardinals won his fourth NL batting crown with .346 while Billy Goodman, Boston's versatile fielder, paced the AL with .354.

Top rookies were Boston's first baseman, Walt Dropo, in the AL and Negro Sam Jethroe, fleet Brave centerfielder in the NL.

Some fabulous deals were made, among them the sale of World Series TV rights for $800,000. The money went into the players' pension fund. Another deal saw the Pirates sign Paul Pettit, 18-year-old southpaw fresh out of a Los Angeles high school for $100,000. The kid had an agent and it was then that Saigh first openly opposed Chandler. Saigh thought Pettit should have been made a free agent. Chandler let the deal stand. Meanwhile, Pettit won only two games and lost seven for New Orleans.

The fact that baseball repealed the bonus rule figures to be a help to Pettit and other youngsters who received more than $6,000 for signing initial baseball contracts. Ordinarily the end of the bonus rule would have been big news but it was lost in the Chandler shuffle.

Red Sox Stronger

The Red Sox appeared to have made the best player deals. After Cleveland released Boudreau, Boston picked him up. The Red Sox also obtained two front line pitchers in Rae Scarborough and Bill Wright from the White Sox in exchange for Joe Dobson, Al Zarilla and rookie Dick Littlefield. Scarborough went from Washington to the White Sox late in May with Eddie Robinson and Al Kozar in exchange for Cass Michaels, Bob Kuzava and John Ostrowski. Third baseman Bob Dillinger, whom the Browns sold to the Athletics for $100,000 last winter, went to the Pirates in mid-July.

Death claimed several former stars. Grover Cleveland Alexander, 63, who won 30 or more games three successive years for the Phillies, passed on a month after watching the World Series. Jewell Ens, 60, ex-Pirate and Syracuse manager; Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, former Cub outfielder and Red Sox coach, and Art Fletcher, 65, former shortstop and Yankee coach, also passed on.

Needleworkers Christmas Party

The Byberry Needleworkers club met with Mrs. John Hardy for their Christmas party with 20 members, three visitors and seven children present.

The home was beautifully decorated with a Christmas tree and other decorations for Christmas. At noon a contributed dinner was served.

In the afternoon the meeting was called to order by the president. The minutes of the last meeting were read.

The hostess received her gifts. Secret pal gifts were distributed. Names of secret pals were revealed and names for 1951 were drawn.

The next meeting will be January 11 at the home of Mrs. Ralph McDowell.

New Stars Shine in Hollywood

Judy Holliday

By Gene Handsaker
AP Newsfeature Writer

HOLLYWOOD—One of the few sure things about the movies is each year brings its crop of bright, beautiful, shapely, and talented young actresses.

Some, like Judy Holliday, whose portrayal of a dumb blonde in "Born Yesterday" probably will win her a nomination for an Academy "Oscar," take the Broadway route to movie stardom.

The curvaceous blonde who was born in New York City got her taste for show business as a switchboard operator at Orson Welles' Mercury Theater on Manhattan's main stem. She sang and acted in skits at Catskill summer resorts with a small troupe and later came to Hollywood with another similar group. They performed at a local restaurant. Their routine in a Betty Grable movie was left out of the finished version.

Judy had a small bit in the wartime movie, "Winged Victory," then returned to New York and played a girl of easy virtue in "Kiss Them for Me." She won the Clarence Derwent prize for the year's best performance there by a supporting player. When Jean Arthur left the "Born Yesterday" cast, Judy stepped in and, after 72 hours of almost continuous rehearsal, opened in Philadelphia. On Broadway she played the role more than 1,200 times. This led to a hilarious bit—again as a dumb blonde—in the Spencer Tracy-Katharine Hepburn movie, "Adam's Rib." The film version of "Born Yesterday" followed. Her director, George Cukor, thinks she could play other types of roles, too.

A list of 1950's most promising newcomers on the American screen include also:

Mala Powers, 19, born in San Francisco, she began dramatic studies at eight at the late Max Reinhardt's acting school in Hollywood. Her mother, a dramatic coach, also helped her. On the radio, Mala did everything from cat meows to gurgling infants and an 80-year-old grandmother. A reading for Producer Ida Lupino got her a leading role in "Outrage." Since then she was borrowed by Sam Goldwyn for "Edge of Doom" and Stanley Kramer, for a key role as Roxane in "Cyrano de Bergerac," opposite Jose Ferrer. Mala has brown hair and bluish gray eyes.

Paula Raymond, born in San Francisco, studied pre-law at Hol-

Great Ladies Grace Broadway

By MARK BARRON
AP Newsfeature Writer

NEW YORK—Great ladies of the stage continued to grace the Broadway theater in 1950 despite the persistent lures of motion pictures, television and other mediums of entertainment.

The veteran stars are assisting the younger leading ladies, an apt example being the recent decision of Helen Hayes to play a secondary role in the February production of "Mary Rose" so that the title role may be played by youthful Bethel Leslie.

Only occasionally has Miss Hayes taken a holiday from the Broadway stage to appear in movies, her first cinema performance in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet" having won her the Academy Award. She later did the role of Maggie in "What Every Woman Knows" on the screen, and she scored further film triumphs in "A Farewell to Arms" and "Arrowsmith."

But, she reserves her acting talents mostly for the stage and, last April, she was cheered by critics for her starring performance in "The Wisteria Trees," Josh Logan's new play which was based on Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard." After that, Miss Hayes appeared on the road in a new play, "Good Housekeeping." It was closed, however, before it arrived in New York because of the sudden tragic death of her daughter, Mary, due to polio.

Judith Anderson, queen of Greek tragedy, has returned from her several recent triumphs in films to the Broadway stage. Three seasons ago she won an undivided ovation with her phrenetic performance in "Medea" and now she is repeating with a powerful interpretation of Clytemnestra in "The Tower Beyond Tragedy."

Continuing to explore with new plays, Katharine Cornell and Lynn Fontanne are two feminine stars who are as enthusiastic about touring as they are about playing on Broadway.

Miss Fontanne, who is now touring with husband Alfred Lunt in their Broadway hit, "I Know My Love," will return to Broadway in the fall for a new production.

Miss Cornell is already touring in Denis Cannan's new drama, "Captain Carvallo," and this will open on Broadway soon with herself and Sir Cedric Hardwicke playing the leading roles.

Like Miss Hayes, Miss Fontanne, Eva Le Gallienne and a few other eminent Broadway feminine stars, Miss Cornell has become her own producer and no longer has to depend upon plays an independent manager will choose. The ladies now choose, produce and perform their own plays, select their own casts and sometimes direct the productions.

The stars on the distaff side frequently have such varied talents. Tallulah Bankhead, the "dah-ling" of Alabama, could not find a play to her liking and revived Noel Coward's "Private Lives" which she has played for the two past seasons on tour to enormous profits. Now she is mistress of ceremonies on the new NBC broadcast "The Big Show," while she awaits a new Broadway play.

Ruth Gordon continues to follow with equal success her two careers as actress and playwright, as the instance of when she played the starring role of Paula Wharton in "Over Twenty-One," a drama of which she is also the author.

Currently on Broadway there are such young feminine leading ladies who are having happy evenings in the theater as Celeste Holm in "Affairs of State," a play which has been playing to crowded audiences since it opened several months ago, and Nancy Kelly, a Lowell, Mass., actress who has the leading role in the hit "Season in the Sun."

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Husky John Wayne attracted more fans to the movie box offices than any other star in 1950, the trade paper, Motion Picture Herald, reports in its annual poll.

actress, came to her role in the dramatic "Affairs of State" from such musical shows as "Oklahoma!" and "The Bloomer Girl." She is a pertinent example of how a young lady can win a part in a Broadway show. When she appeared for an auditioning for a leading role in the rambunctious, yoo-hoo "Oklahoma!" she had no forehand knowledge as to the type of story it concerned. So she chose Grieg and Schubert classical music for her audition numbers and, was signed to a contract before she finished singing.

Mrs. Lewis Hurt In Car Accident

Mrs. George Lewis, route two, Knob Noster, who was severely injured on Christmas Eve, near Pontiac, Ill., in a car collision, was returned to Sedalia Saturday. She was taken to the Bothwell hospital under the care of Dr. Grove of Knob Noster.

Mrs. Lewis was riding with her husband as they were returning to Knob Noster from Chicago where they had been visiting with their daughter Mrs. Robert Hunter and family for several days. They expected to be at their home by Christmas.

The accident occurred at the junction of Highway 24 and 66 at Chenoa, Ill. According to a report from Pontiac, in the other car involved in the accident was Leon Wright of Chicago, the driver who was injured.

The Lewis car was headed south on 66 and the car in which Wright was riding was headed east on highway 24 and failed to stop at a stop sign according to a report of the State Highway Patrol of Illinois. The Lewis car was struck in the side and was turned over several times.

Mrs. Lewis suffered a badly injured right ankle, cuts and bruises and also shock. Wright was reported to have suffered a back injury.

Total damage to both cars was estimated at between $1,500 and $1,800 damages.

We can show one within four blocks of Ohio street, which has 5 large rooms and bath on the first floor. There is a full size dry basement and the whole house is heated by a good forced-air furnace. By following a beautiful walnut stairway from the entrance hall to the second floor you'll find two modern apartments with bath. One is two rooms with a nice breakfast nook. Ten Biggest Stories of Year In The State

Politics, 'Gas' Tax Defeat, Crime and Sports In News

Below is a story on the 10 biggest stories of the year in Missouri as selected by staffs of Associated Press member newspapers in Missouri.

By C. A. JOHNSON
Missouri State Editor

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A curious cab driver heard the sound of running water as he walked past 716-18 Truman road here early the morning of April 6.

The cabbie, W. A. Gambill, called police. What the officers found wasn't a defect in the plumbing at the First Democratic club, but the bodies of two men, each shot four times in the head.

Victims of the slaying were Charles Binaggio, dapper Democratic faction leader, and his buddy, Charles Gargotta, underworld character.

Editors of Missouri newspapers selected that story as the biggest of the year 1950.

In their estimation the end of Binaggio's short and checkered career overshadowed the outcome of three elections, the census, and the state's push toward a war footing.

Binaggio, they reasoned, was climbing upward in political power, not only in Kansas City, but in the state. He had designs on the throne once occupied by the late Tom Pendergast, under whom he had learned the political ropes as a precinct worker.

In the 1948 election he had demonstrated his power in gathering a good block of Kansas City votes through consolidation of several factions. Later he was seen frequently in Jefferson City, mingling with the legislators.

Death Unsolved
Binaggio's death, never solved, unleashed a chain of events, many of them aimed in the Kefauver crime committee hearings in Kansas City and St. Louis, a story which the editors also listed among the first 10.

The reasons for the slayings? There were many theories advanced. Senator Estes Kefauver, chairman of the Senate crime committee, summed it up this way:

"I have an idea his death may have been caused because he was unable to deliver to the people to whom he had made promises."

Most observers agreed. Binaggio, they said, had expected to open up the state to gambling, and had failed. So the underworld rubbed him out.

Prior to the slaying, Binaggio had been called as a witness before a federal grand jury, investigating crime and underworld income.

Of the events that April morning, a Democratic precinct captain observed:

"Some guy with a pistol just beat Uncle to the draw."

Gasoline Tax Election

Only two days before the slayings, Missouri voters turned thumbs down on a rural road measure under which it was proposed to double the present two-cent gasoline tax. The proposal was rejected, 528,201 to 179,094.

The editors picked that as the second biggest story of the year. The campaign aroused a lot of fire. Gov. Forrest Smith stumped the state for the tax increase, part of which would be earmarked for rural roads. He met with considerable opposition. Some contended it would throw the state's bi-partisan highway organization into politics and would circumvent constitutional safeguards on highway and road funds.

Given number three spot in the rankings, was the decennial census. The state came up with a population of 3,933,636 according to preliminary figures, an increase of 3.9 per cent. But the big story behind the figures was, that despite a gain, Missouri would lose two representatives in Congress. This also will lead in the days ahead to a battle over re-districting the state.

The defeat of state Senator Emory W. Allison of Rolla for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate was selected for fourth place by the newsmen. Allison had the endorsement of President Truman and the support of many state party leaders, but he went down before Congressman Tom Hennings of St. Louis. This contest stole the show in the primary.

In the general election Hennings went on to defeat U.S. Senator Forrest Donnell—the only Senate race in the country where a Democrat unseated a Republican incumbent. The editorial pollsters gave this story fifth place in the state ratings.

As usual Missouri's weather got some big headlines during the year and the editors gave it sixth place in their balloting. The year started wet and ended dry. More than 12,000 persons were made homeless in southeast Missouri floods. Joplin had a $1,500,000 hail storm. Ice storms played hob with property in some sections, particularly the west and central sections. Came fall and farmers in many sections had to haul water for their livestock. Then there was November's record cold wave.

Seventh place went to the state's move to a defense footing. Several of the state's non-divisional National Guard units were called into federal service. A number of organized reserve units went on active duty. Draft quotas were stepped up. Defense preparations and armed service calls stepped up employment to boom time levels. As a result unemployment compensation payments were the lowest in five years. As the year ended there was a rush to convert industrial plants to turn out the machines of war.

For the first time in the state's history, Negroes were admitted to the University of Missouri. The state's editors rated this story eighth.

Nine Negroes enrolled at the University after Cole county Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair ruled they must be admitted to the University and the Rolla School of Mines if they could not obtain comparable courses at Lincoln University.

Earlier the U.S. Supreme Court had made a similar ruling in a Texas case. This led Judge Blair to comment in his decision: "It would seem that the United States Supreme Court has written my case for me."

Ninth on the list of the selection were the Kefauver crime committee hearings. This committee came to the state seeking interstate links in underworld operations.

Grasp for Power

At the Kansas City hearings Binaggio's name received frequent mention—all pointing to his grasp for power. Roy McKittick, former attorney general, related how Binaggio had offered him up to $50,000 to withdraw from the Democratic gubernatorial primary in 1948. Binaggio, he testified, told him "he just had to have a governor."

Robert Cohn and Hampton Chambers, two hold-over members of the Kansas City police board, resisted their ouster by Governor Smith. They told the committee they had been offered bribes and threatened to "lay-off" certain gambling operations. Cohn related how Binaggio one night tossed him a roll of bills—but he had tossed it right back.

Governor Smith appeared as a witness. He denied he knew anything of Binaggio's efforts to control the police department and added he had not been approached "by anyone, either directly or indirectly, to lessen law enforcement since I have been governor."

To most Missouri baseball fans, the St. Louis Cardinals occupy a position in tradition only second to the Missouri mule. So when the mighty Cards collapsed during the 1950 season it made news on the sport pages. And the editors voted this the 10th and last on the list.

Cardinals Downfall

In mid-June the Cards were leading the National League by three and a half games and were heavy favorites to win the pennant. But they faded fast and ended in fifth place—their first second division finish since 1938. Injuries to key players hurt the team. In October Manager Eddie Dyer resigned. Owner Fred Saigh interviewed nearly a score of candidates for the job, finally selected Cardinal short-stop Marty Marion for the post.

Those are the first 10 picked by the editors. Now here they are in brief:

1. Charles Binaggio slaying.
2. Defeat of rural road measure.
3. Decennial census.
4. Defeat of Emory Allison for Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.
5. Defeat of Republican Forrest Donnell for Senate.
6. The weather.
7. Missouri move to war footing.
8. Admission of Negroes to M. U. and Rolla School of Mines.
9. Kefauver Senate crime committee hearings.
10. Collapse of the St. Louis Cardinals.
